High school students may select between two types of programs: The Professional Studies Program (PPS) is a performance-based curriculum for talented students in grades 9–12 who aspire to pursue future studies at four-year institutions. The program offers rigorous college preparatory coursework in the core academic areas of liberal arts and sciences, foreign language, mathematics, and the visual and performing arts. It includes elective courses in career-related fields of study that can be applied towards postsecondary degrees or certificates. The International Program (IP) is an international baccalaureate program designed for gifted students in grades 9–12 who seek to learn about the culture of other countries. The program prepares students for study at American colleges and universities. Students may choose between two types of curricula: the International Baccalaureate Diploma Program (IBDP) or the International Baccalaureate Certificate Program (IB), which leads to the award of the IB Diploma, an early childhood certificate, or a high school diploma. Students in both programs can also take two additional courses required for eventual college entrance: English, Spanish, and U.S.
